

Professional Internship available with the Maine International Trade Center

As a center for trade development and export promotion, the Maine International Trade Center (MITC) works with private companies and State, Regional, Federal, and Foreign government agencies to expand the Maine economy internationally. This highly visible position with MITC would provide invaluable experience to those interested in international trade and economic development and gain practical experience assisting Small and Medium Enterprises, Corporations, Government Agencies, Universities, and Non-Profit organizations that are internationally active.

A HAESF scholar would work as an integral part of a dynamic team. During your time at MITC, expect to develop experience in:

- international market research and statistical analysis
- working with the U.S. Department of Commerce and other federal agencies
- applying international trade laws
- trade development consulting
- educational event programming

Furthermore, long-range research projects and presentations would be developed in accordance with the needs of our organization and your professional goals.

Our ideal candidate:

- possesses strong research and analytical skills
- is interested in a career in international business, economic, or trade development
- is knowledgeable about world markets
- is fluent in English, with capacities in other regional languages helpful
- would work to establish a long term relationship between the State of Maine and markets in Central and Southeast Europe, including the Republic of Hungary

Past interns at MITC have gone on to pursue meaningful careers in a variety of areas. These positions include employment:

- in other state and federal international trade agencies
- as market development analysts in private sector companies
- for international organizations such as the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
- for industry specific trade organizations
